CAS Student Handbook 2024–2025

The Bethel University College of Arts & Sciences Student Handbook contains important information enrolled students need to know, including guidance on student conduct and disciplinary processes. Students are responsible to read and abide by the policies and university standards contained in this digital student handbook. Students are advised to review the handbook each year and as needed for important and new information they are expected to know. While the policies and standards outlined in the handbook provide students with an effective set of guidelines for personal conduct, the university retains the right to enact additional policies and regulations, correct errors, or modify existing policies as it determines. This updated digital handbook supersedes and replaces all previously published and/or online versions of the Bethel CAS Student Handbook. All policies and practices described in this handbook are subject to change without prior notice. Any amendments, revisions, additions, or deletions to this handbook will be made available at bethel.edu/undergrad/student-life/community/handbook or through other means. New or modified policies are effective immediately unless otherwise noted.
